Conventions.

Chicago, August 15.—The Republican convention elected John [illegible] chairman. After [illegible] Morgan S. Bulkley for governor, General Fitzhugh Lee governor, R. [illegible] of state, by acclamation [illegible] was nominated for [illegible] Wright for comptroller. [illegible] the administration approves the republican platform declares against tariff reform, and favors protection to industry and labor; declares free trade as embodied in the president's message, in the democratic platform to be inimical to the interests of [illegible] and favors a tariff for revenue only; favors a higher law; favors a ballot and fair registration for ex-soldiers and sailors.

Chicago, August 15.—The convention to nominate presidential electors [illegible]

A lively contest ensued between friends and opponents of [illegible] of the state committee, [illegible] to temporary organization in the choice of P. [illegible] of Depew's friends [illegible]

August 13.—The democratic convention to-day renominated Governor Hoss and Lieutenant-Governor [illegible] by acclamation.

State Caucus.

August 13.—There was a caucus of democratic senators this morning. It is understood that a letter has been received by Beck from Cleveland stating that leading democrats in the house had adopted tactics to defeat the treaty, and asking for the co-operation of senators in the passage of the bill. The caucus lasted two hours.

Death.

Chicago, August 15.—Mrs. Charles Crocker reached this city in a private car late last night. Her son George Crocker was here to meet her, having come on from Utah. He was in ignorance as to whether his mother had received news of her husband's death. When the train entered the depot he boarded the car alone a little group of [illegible] Crocker. The widow had not heard the news, and the scene between mother and son was touching in the extreme. After the first shock was over, however, the bereaved and [illegible] resumed the journey. Little fine was lost in switching the car through the yards and attaching it to a Rock Island train, and at [illegible] o'clock they were on their way to San Francisco, after a stay of not more than fifteen minutes. From Ogden, where they strike the road of the dead millionaire, they will be sent forward on special trains and will arrive at their destination late this on Sunday.

The Apache Outlaws.

Washington, August 15.—The adjutant general of the army to-day received the following letter from Gen. O. O. Howard, dated San Francisco: "Several sensational reports have come to me from different sources claiming an Indian raid into Pleasant Valley, Arizona. All these have been proved without foundation. General Miles sent from San Carlos the following telegram just received: report from Pleasant Valley. I was satisfied the reports could not be true and made no reports of it. It proves entirely without foundation. There are but six men away from their proper camps, awaiting arrest for acts of violence at the Indian agencies. Indian quarrels. I expect these to surrender here and there to surrender at Apache. None have left the reservation, neither have they disturbed the person or property of white men. They fired upon the scouts, but the cause and circumstances cannot be fully explained by telegraph. In the main all other Indians are under control, and a condition of peace prevails."

Iowa's Railroad Tariff.

Des Moines, Iowa, August 15.—A meeting of jobbers and manufacturers of leading cities of Iowa was held here last night to consider the new tariff proposed by Iowa roads. Governor Larrabee and others made speeches denouncing the railroads in bitter terms. Governor Larrabee declared the roads were trying to punish the people of Iowa for asserting their rights. He had carefully investigated the new schedule prepared by the state commissioners, and was satisfied [illegible] just. A committee was appointed to draw up a plan of action against the roads. No secret was made of the fact that steps were being taken for a big legal fight.

New Market.

New York, August 15.—Money on call easy, closing offered at 2, prime paper 4@6. The stock market to-day was a typical summer day one. All the large operators are out of town, and the operations of room traders, with some buying for London account and selling by commission brokers, covered the usual features. There was no disposition shown to sell stocks, and they were difficult to borrow. Governments were quiet and steady.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Blaine Approves the Decision of Republican Senator.

To Prepare and Report a Bill for Tariff Revision.

Harrison's Chinese Record Discussed in the Senate.

Western Members Warmly Defend His Votes and Position.

Blaine to the Front.

New York, August 15.—A Washington special of the Post this afternoon says: The attention of a number of the committee on finance was called this morning to the published statement that Blaine sent a message by Washburne through Senator Hale that it was incumbent for Republicans at the present session to report a tariff bill. He said: "This report [illegible] to be unfortunate [illegible] ever, that a prominent republican would see Mr. Blaine in New York and talked with him on tariff matters and bring a message to the committee that Mr. Blaine does not see that republicans of the Senate have any alternative except to prepare and report a tariff bill. That is the only suggestion that has come to the committee as to the views of Mr. Blaine on the subject."

Fiftieth Congress.

SIXTY-SIXTH DAY.

Washington, August 15.—The [illegible] consideration of the Fisheries treaty, Morgan speaking in favor of a motion to postpone further consideration until December. In the course of a colloquy, and after some allusion to Vest's [illegible] on one side and exclusive holders on the other, between Senators Morgan, Frye, Dawes and Hawley, Morgan said: "You have not hesitated to say or at any rate say we are rebels, traitors, men not to be trusted, and who violated our [illegible] national flag, and whose consciences are burned with [illegible] hot iron, that we will decently to be hanged, and that we are living now by your mercy and clemency, and I have only said you did not dare to hang any of us. You had Jefferson Davis under arrest, and the United States government did not dare to bring him to trial, because it would have been [illegible] to the opinion of the great jurists who would have had to try him, that he had not committed treason."

Teller replied to some statements in Morgan's speech to the effect that during Arthur's administration many outrages had been inflicted on American fishery vessels and had not been resented by that administration. He declared there was not a word of truth in such statements. During [illegible] there never had been a seizure of a single American vessel for violation of the treaty of 1818, but since the present administration could interpret their [illegible] more than 300 vessels had been seized by Canadian and British authorities. The flag had been hauled down and no apology had ever been made for it. As to the suggestion that the government had [illegible] Jefferson Davis, and because the court would not have found him guilty of high treason Teller charged Cleveland as such.

Vest said his judgment had been given since open session on the treaty had been denied that majority which would be advocated by Cleveland's administration, with the British government could be ratified by the senate. Party exigencies and the necessity of party welfare demanded that the tail of the British lion should be publicly twisted and that royal animal should howl again and as the loyal song about John Brown's body would [illegible] that lion plain to the dullest tones of "Erin go Bragh." Referring to the recent speech of Senator Stewart on the Chinese question, Vest proceeded to argue that the opposition to the anti-Chinese movement in the senate in 1879 and 1882 had come not from democratic but from republican [illegible] M. Harrison, the republican candidate for the presidency.

In 1876 seven Chinamen in Indianapolis all but were, there were admitted to naturalization, and immediately voted for the republican ticket when Harrison was defeated for the governorship of Indiana by "Blue Jeans" Williams. After [illegible] the [illegible] of the Chinese bill and various amendments, he said this proved that the presiding officer of the senate was in the right in saying that the records of Sherman, Harrison or the other presidential candidates were awkward on the tariff, currency, and on the Chinese question. Vest also quoted from the letter of Harrison to Rev. J. I. Brant, of St. Louis, February 20th, 1886, saying in connection with his action on the bill restricting Chinese immigration: "It was a little hard for me to let go the old idea that this was the free home of all comers."

Stewart said Harrison had not during the discussion of the anti-Chinese measures uttered a word in favor of Chinese immigration, and his votes had simply been conformance to the treaty [illegible] afterwards when the treaty was being evaded Harrison voted for a bill that was acceptable to people on the Pacific coast. His record was as satisfactory to the people on the Pacific coast as if he had thrived the Chinese for forty years.

Beck called attention to the speech recently made by Senator Voorhees in the senate asserting that Harrison had voted fifteen times against the bill to restrict Chinese immigration and said the statement had not been contradicted. He denounced the republicans for keeping the cheapest labor they could find in order to protect profits, and said Southerners were [illegible] and is intended to be the protector of American labor.

Dolph denied that Harrison's record on [illegible] would show that he had ever been in favor of the admission of Chinese labor in the United States. The people of the Pacific coast were not to be decided in this matter. They understood the policy which lay back of the Mills bill and which had inspired the present message. They saw the great democratic party with its arms around the great industrial interests of the country as Samson had his arms around the pillars of the Philistine temple ready to pull it down on their heads, and they were willing to trust the question of Chinese immigration to the republican party.

Mitchell also defended the record of Harrison on the Chinese question, and said that the only restrictive legislation [illegible]

Adjourned.

Bills of Congressmen.

New York, August 15.—The committee investigating the evils of immigration to-day examined David Haines, president of the local cigar makers' International union. He said American workmen had been almost driven out of the business by foreign laborers. In '64 [illegible] makers could earn $50 a week; now $12 was a fair week's wages and many manufacturers imported foreign labor.

A Turkish Crisis.

London, August 15.—A crisis is reported to Turkey between the sultan and ministers, due to the refusal of the sultan to sanction the grand vizier's proposal to borrow 1,500,000 pounds to pay overdue wages of soldiers and sailors. There are rumors that Said Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, will succeed Kiamel Pasha as grand vizier, and Soliman Pasha will be sent to London on a secret mission.

Allotments to Crows.

Crow Agency, Mont., August 15.—Special Agent Colonel Jas. H. Howard has just reached here from Indian territory to resume the allotment of land to the Crows on orders from the department. Six hundred allotments were made last year and there are about 300 yet to be made. Howard was gratified to find the Indians understood the matter better than last year, and are anxious to have allotments take away.

Successful Conferences.

Washington, August 15.—As a further conference representatives reached an agreement upon the naval appropriation bill. The bill [illegible] finally a concession of the demands of both senate and house, the former agreeing to restore to the bill the original provision for a seven hundred-ton armored cruiser, the latter the two double-end gun boats proposed by the senate. Conferees on the army appropriation bill have reached an agreement.

Meeting of Western Editors.

Denver, August 15.—The annual meeting of the Western Associated press was held in this city to-day, when annual reports were submitted showing an entirely satisfactory condition of the year's business and its results. A memorial tribute to the late D. R. Locke, of the Toledo Blade, was directed to be prepared and placed upon the record. The officers of the last year were all elected.

Entries of Coal Lands Attacked.

Denver, August 15.—United States District Attorney Robson has filed in the United States court a suit to cancel the patents to forty-two entries of coal land aggregating [illegible] acres in the vicinity of Trinidad. The suit is brought against the Gray Creek Coal and Coking company and Dr. Michael Beshoar, and the entries are commonly known as the Beshoar entries.

The Chicago Robbery.

Chicago, August 15.—Postoffice [illegible] having in charge the box robbery affair have completed a partial list of checks, drafts, money orders and negotiable papers found in Oberkampf's rooms. So far it foots up over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The inspector is satisfied the aggregate value of the stolen documents recovered will be fully a million dollars.

Turkey Opposes the Railroad.

Constantinople, August 15.—The government has ordered the evacuation from railway stations in Turkish territory of all bunting put up by railway officials to commemorate the opening of a through line from this city to Paris, and has given instructions to allow the train now on its way from Paris to Cattistantinople opening the road, to proceed in silence. Turkey opposes the opening of the road.

Successful Revolutionists.

Port au Prince, August 15.—The revolution has been successful. The [illegible] government is overthrown. The president has taken refuge on an English frigate. Hoovion has formed a new government.

The American press seems to have reached its end, but the republican party will still be the representative of American ideas.

The present session of congress promises to be the most interesting in the history of that body. The longest session of congress was that of 1857-8 which came to an end on August 31st.

Mr St John the apostle of prohibition, thinks that the republicans will only carry Pennsylvania and Nebraska. While Mr St John is a firm advocate of cold water policy, his ideas of the strength of the republican party appear to be slightly muddled.

The recent canvass have a good show in every Connecticut for Harrison. In 1884 the democrats carried the state by a plurality of only 1296. The republican vote of that year reached 67,081. The democratic vote was 68,377. The Prohibition vote was 1,951. The Greenback vote was 1,335. The republicans will more than wipe out the majority of four years ago.

Hon. Thomas M. Patterson is going to make a democratic speech in Maine the first of which will be delivered on the 28th inst. The spectacle of Mr Patterson endeavoring to demolish Mr. Blaine in the latter's own state will be quite amusing to Coloradoans. Mr. Patterson, however, is not quite so well known in Maine as he is in Colorado, and he may be able to change a few votes there.

According to Lord Salisbury Russia intends to leave Bulgaria severely alone for a time at least. His theory is upheld by Mansion House is taken as an official confirmation of the report to the above effect which has been in circulation in Europe an diplomatic circles for some time. The prospect that Russia Austria and Germany will right over Bulgarian affairs is quite satisfying.

The New York Times has the following caustic remarks concerning the manner in which bills are rushed through congress:

The action of the president with reference to certain bills that were passed on the 25th ult. shows that he take and friendly interest in cases of legislative speed and endurance. It will be recalled that on the 24th ult. the senate beat the world's record for cases of this kind by passing 130 pension bills in 20 minutes, the average time per bill being 23 seconds, while the best average up to that time had been 24. The president has vetoed 11 of the 130 bills. In some cases the reasons were that the disabilities in question had no connection with the military service of the applicants. It appears that one of the bills would have pensioned a man who deserted twice and did not return after his second departure. In another case there was no evidence of disability. But the president must understand that when the senate is making a trial of speed it can know nothing about such defects as these. The bills themselves cannot be read to say nothing of Mr Sawyer's speech that accompany them. How could satisfactory time record be made if the senate should attempt to become acquainted with the bills prepared for the chair? We presume that if Mr. Cleveland were a senator he would show his lack of interest in senate sports by asking questions or doing some other unreasonable and foolish thing just when the race was most exciting.

STATE NEWS.

The annual council of the state officers of the Salvation Army is in session at Denver.

The counties in the northern part of the state are holding teachers' normal institute at Greeley.

A three cornered fight is in progress for the republican nomination for state senator in Weld county.

At a meeting of the directors of the Pueblo, Grandview & Pacific railroad it was decided to raise $10,000 for the immediate completion of the preliminary survey of the road.

Jere Irwin, the candidate of the people's party, was elected mayor of Leadville on Tuesday by 282. This is claimed as an anti-Irwin county and it is rumored that on the anti-Irwin houses will be required.

A Great Swimmer.

Calcutta Englishman.

Not many days ago, a Babu was being driven along one of the main thoroughfares in Calcutta by his coachman in the usual careless way, and on his getting upon a descent and increasing it. The police appeared on the scene, and the result was a summons against the Babu for damages and against the coachman for furious and reckless driving. The case came before the magistrate, and when the coachman was called an individual stepped forward and said that he was the man. Of course he was identified by the police, and in the end was sentenced to a month's rigorous imprisonment, the Babu being ordered to pay a certain sum for damages. The next day, while the owner of the dog-cart was in office, the Baby's pleader appeared with the money, and the case was off, after receiving it, said: "Look here now, the thing is all over but tell me, was the man who appeared in court yesterday the coachman who ran into me? I didn't think he was." "Oh, sir," said the pleader, "it was great misfortune. At the time when the summons came on for hearing the Babu cancelled the coachman's service so he said to his nephew, who lives with him, 'You go to the court—it will be only a matter of a small fines take this money with you.' And now, sir, the Babu's nephew has got one month's rigorous imprisonment, and he dare not complain, for he would then be prosecuted for false impersonation. It is great misfortune." Thus does the law at times avenge its own dignity upon those who trifle with it.

A Hindoo Wedding.

St. James Gazette.

A correspondent of the Scotsman, writing from Bombay, describes a Hindoo wedding which he was present as being interesting not only as a ceremony but as a spectacle. "The branches of the trees in the garden were outlined with little lamps, and a large pond in front of the house was hung round very richly with flags between the wreaths of lamps were suspended. From the balcony of the house I saw the bridegroom arrive on a red horse, accompanied by many friends. He was dressed in cloth of gold, and wore a splendid hat, and his richly caparisoned horse had wreaths of yellow flowers placed at equal short distances across its back and hanging down to the ground. He dismounted at the entrance, where his little bride met him and threw rice over her own and his head as a symbol that she would care for the wants of the household. They went together into the house, where the wedding guests were assembled, and sat down on two cushions facing each other. A white cloth was held up in front of his face, and she covered her face with her sari, whilst a cord of yellow and white worsted was then put round their necks, joining them together. A large piece of muslin was then put round his neck and held up close to her, and under this they joined hands. On leaving the house, a bouquet on which attar of roses had been poured was presented to every guest, and wreaths of flowers were hung round our necks by our hosts. A pot of red paint seems to have been one of the "properties" necessary at the wedding, and the veneration in which the red paint was held was exemplified by a fact narrated by the correspondent. When telegraph posts were first set up in some remote parts of India the native headmen ran about and cut the same down for firewood. A young engineer, who had studied the aboriginal character, painted the posts red when upon the native worshipped the posts and ceased to carry them away as totem offerings.

Facetious John Allen.

Lexington Times.

One of Allen's best jokes was perpetrated on one of his keyboard constituents who had cried to the national capital and had Allen show him the sights. The old, credulous man took his delighted friend into the House gallery and pointed out to him the distinguished people on the floor below.

"Who," said the leader of the house in [illegible]

"Why," said Allen, "that is Tariff Reform now addressing the House. The first man on the left is the leader of the house. He is [illegible] and will be ready for a [illegible]."

The Mississippian pricked up his ears and listened. A moment later the clerk had fallen out at the head of the list.

"John M Allen."

UNCLE SAM'S OFFICES.

STORIES ABOUT QUEER CHARACTERS WHO APPLY FOR THEM.

How the President Treats Office Seekers—the Confident Applicant—A Story of Mr Tilden—President Cleveland's First Visit to Washington—Women Office Seekers.

Special Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.

WASHINGTON has four office seekers than it has had for years. The political campaign has driven them to their homes and they are trying to earn their right to a place under the next administration. The applications for office are numbered by millions. There are about 150,000 places in the government service, all told, and there are in the neighborhood of ten applications for each of these annually. There are now several hundred thousand applications for positions in the postoffice department which have not been acted upon, and the appointment clerks of the treasury has taken away papers in the cases of rejected office seekers which if spread out would carpet the state of Rhode Island. I chatted with one of the appointment clerks yesterday, and he told me that the rule was that the smaller the position and the smaller the salary the greater the number of applicants for it. Each application is accompanied with letters of recommendation and indorsement, and not a few men bring petitions signed by hundreds of citizens of their native town. If the position is a very important one and the application seems worthy, it is briefed and sent to President Cleveland, but in many cases it never gets beyond the hands of the clerk. In the interior department there are two large rooms devoted to the storing of these applications for office.

The office seekers of Washington do not by any means represent the numbers of applications received. Many of the requests for places are made by mail and not a few by congressmen and senators who represent the district from which the applicants come.

IN THE SENATE RECEPTION ROOM.

The horde at Washington is large enough. It fills the hotels at the first of the session, and it keeps up the boarding houses in the back streets later on. When the office seeker arrives he is flush, and he does not hesitate to pay $5 a day for his board. A week later he begins to economize, and by the end of the session he is, as a rule, strapped. He then borrows from his friends, and if he has not sense enough to get back home he gravitates into a "dead beat." There is no place in the world where "dead beatism" prevails to such an extent as it does in Washington. You will find about fifty men about each of the leading hotels in the course of a day who will accept a drink from a man if he crooks his finger, and a more good natured set of seedy looking fellows does not exist.

Those are lawyers, too, who have lost hope and who are, as a rule, working the world for all it is worth. The office seekers proper are intensely earnest in their labors for positions, and I occasionally go into the White House and watch the crowd as it besieges the president. He grasps each by the hand, gives him a short quick shake and says, "How do you do?" and that is about all the satisfaction the average man gets. They come again and again, but after a while they find they are not admitted. They acquire a certain office seeking air which marks them as plainly as would the small-pox or leprosy, and the officials know them on sight. The confident office seeker is one of the most curious of the class he comes here blowing and blustering about his friends. He says he is going to have Grover do this and Grover do that, talks about "me and Vilas," and according to his statements he almost sleeps with Dan Lamont. After he fails in getting a position he often turns into a lobbyist and works men who have claims against the government on his pretended intimacy with the great men. He will say: "I say Jones, I want you to see the president or Mrs. Cleveland, and when you meet him at the hotel to fill the appointment you will find that something has come up to prevent its being made."

CLEVELAND AND THE OFFICE SEEKER.

One of these confident office seekers hired a hall when he first came here and delivered a lecture in favor of himself. He wanted the mission to Rome and he was a Catholic. In his lecture he said that a Catholic ought to be appointed to this position, and he demonstrated the fact that he was just the Catholic for it. He did not get it, however, and went to Judge Scaife of Cincinnati.

By the way did you ever know that Cleveland was once an office seeker? I heard the story at that I was the other day, and the man who made it was Dr Bliss, of Garfield fame. He says that he has it on good authority that President Cleveland came here along in the sixties when he was a young man and asked for an office. He had a friend holding a high position under government and connected with district matters. This friend was a great friend of Cleveland's father. When young Grover called upon him he flatly refused to give him what he wanted, and told him there was no worse place for him in the world than here. The result was that the young man went home disgusted up to Buffalo, and is now filling the highest position in the land. There are men in Washington who have come into the city [illegible] for his check-ship. They are looked down, intellectual nonentities. Uncle Sam has squeezed all the juice out of them long ago and the only part of their mental constitution which exists is the fear that they will be removed.

One of the funniest stories was found in an application which came to the interior department. It read as follows, and I give it with the capitals that appeared in the original letter:

"Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, Dear Sir—In trying Experiments I Placed A Duck under a Spout and worked the Pump vigorously Half an Hour. No Drop of the Fluid Penetrated His Feathery Armor—I Next wrote a Politician who Could Help me to A Position. By A word or the Scratch of a Pen the Duck and the Politician Are In

ME AND OTHAN.

Positions. In Considering my Application For Employment, I Hope you will Not Be a Duck Nor A Politician."

In the change of postoffices a number of postmasters offered to sell out their positions, and I know several congressmen who got a hack on this shoe. Tim Foley, of Michigan, was one of those who were very indignant letters [illegible] appointee to pay for the ousted Republican for his place.

The women office seekers are numerous, and indeed the departments offer very nice positions to women. The hours are short and the wages are better than they can get anywhere else. They make good clerks, and in many cases they like the work and are especially fitted for certain departments. They come here by the [illegible]. They are as a rule of good families, and are usually well dressed and well educated. Many of them are widows whose husbands have died in the service, and not a few are soldiers' daughters. They are the daughters of the soldiers of the south as well as those of the north, and a very fair percentage of the female officers in Uncle Sam's clerical army come from the F F V's. Women office seekers are very importunate, that is, the holder ones among them. They cannot be put off like the men, and they form the bete noir of many a congressman. The ladies' reception room at the Capitol is crowded during the session, and two page boys are kept busy carrying in cards to congressmen [illegible] to come out and see Miss Jones, of Wayback, or Miss Smith, from Podunk Center.

A DESCENDANT OF WASHINGTON.

The blue blooded office seekers are the most indignant when they are not given big places, and a few of them seem to think that the services of their fathers entitle their line to a continuance support by the government. I had a chat with a descendant of Madison who was very indignant because President Cleveland had not given him a cabinet position or something of like value, and who seemed to think that he could overturn Cleveland's administration by the [illegible] finger. I trust he will be magnanimous and not refuse it. I know of some of Jefferson's descendants who still hold office, and there are relatives of nearly every great family in the government employ. One of them is a descendant of Washington, and he applied some of the true blood which animates his brain to the managing a boarding house during the intervals of his department work. Not long ago a friend of mine wanted to get a room in his house. He called upon him and was received by George Washington's illustrious forty-second cousin. Before he had crossed the door step, he was informed of the ancestry of the boarding house keeper, and at the end of every question he asked as to terms and accommodations was tacked on something about the Washington family. My friend is something of a dyspeptic, and he said at the close of about ten minutes of Washingtonia that he would like to know as to what kind of meats they had for breakfast. The descendant of the great man replied: "Oh, we have very good meats, but one of my ancestors, an uncle of George Washington, liked his meat so and so."

I don't care a straw about your ancestor, Gen. George Washington," rejoined my friend; "what I want is to know that I am going to have good beef for breakfast, and I want it rare, whether it is cooked by a descendant of George Washington's uncle or by George Washington's nigger."

BEST LINE EAST.

The Union Pacific Ry is by all odds the "Best Line East," on account of the fast time that is made and the reasonable hours for leaving Denver. Also the close connection that is made in Union depot with the trunk lines from Kansas City, Council Bluffs, St. Louis, and Chicago, reaching all the principal cities in the east. The U. P. Ry. is also the short line to the Pacific Coast, running two trains daily west and four trains to the east daily. The evening trains from Colorado Springs make close connections in Denver with the Union Pacific Ry. c-23-tf
